Let's get started with a little game of pretend. We meet at the local grocery store on a Sunday morning and I tell you that I just got my free fifty dollars from the newspaper. You look a bit confused, so I inform you that you could go buy a paper and get fifty dollars free as well. You rush across the store and find the newspapers, peeking into the middle section to verify that in fact fifty dollars in cash is tucked inside. You buy the paper and collect your groceries from the aisles. Rather than paying a $150 at the register, you only have to pay $100.

If this were to really happen, what would you be doing every Sunday after our meeting? Probably buying a paper to see how much free money you could collect for another week of groceries, right? That is exactly what I hope will happen from us meeting here today. I hope to turn my years of couponing experience into enhanced savings for your family.

While this is just a fun game of pretend, you can in fact find free money sitting in the newspaper every Sunday. In fact, if you are really ambitious you can actually find a lot more free money online. You just have to find it and print it out!

If you guessed that the free money is in the form of coupons...you are very smart! I see coupons as cash. They are free money handed out every single week for those who take the time to find them and use them. If you learn how to match those coupons up with sales and discounted prices offered through your local stores, you could make out even better than in our pretend meeting above. You could perhaps spend $150 this week and only pay $30 at the register. You could get that $100 cart of groceries completely free next week.

Don't write it off until you have tried it! It seems too good to be true, but it has happened to me and it could happen to you. Coupons are cash. Never forget that.

Most people would make a point to track down the coupons if they were in fact crisp green bills, but only the true bargain hunters who want to save as much money as possible will take the time to find the best coupons and match them up to the best bargains at local stores week after week. If you would like to be one of those true bargain hunters but don't have the time to do all of the coupon hunting, clipping, and bargain shopping every week, SavingsAngel will become your partner in savings.

I know what it is like to be a coupon beginner. I know what it is like to feel that desperation to cut back on expenses so you can stay home with your children, or so you can simply feed your children every day!

I also know what it is like to be a devoted bargain hunter and coupon clipper. I know that feeling of tracking down a good deal and the elation of walking out of a store with hundreds of dollars of products without actually paying for them—and without being locked up for theft because it is all legit!

If you aren't sure about taking SavingsAngel as your partner in savings, use my advice and experience to help you make that decision. I learned how to save with coupons the hard way, but I don't want you to have to do that. That is why I put together this list of ten insider tips on SavingsAngel. I hope my experience with couponing in general, and the program specifically, will help you decide whether this is the Angel you have been looking for or not.

#1: SavingsAngel transforms coupon shopping from scrambled eggs to a well formed omelet

Before I started using SavingsAngel, coupon shopping was much like making scrambled eggs. I had to "scramble" for ten or more hours some weeks just to find the best bargains in my community, locate coupons to match up to those bargains, and then organize all of those coupons so I could get in and out of the store without digging around like the crazy coupon lady.

Don't get me wrong. I am not above holding up the line while the cashier scans a whopper load of coupons into the system. I just like to save as much of everyone's time as possible by having my coupons neatly organized and ready for that scanning marathon. It takes time. I am never going to lie about that. It just doesn't have to take nearly as much time when you use SavingsAngel for coupon management.

In those days, there were many periods of time when I fell out of couponing completely. Life was simply too busy and complicated to be scrambling eggs!

When I first found SavingsAngel, I was offered free access in exchange for a professional review. I had my doubts as to whether the world really needed another coupon management system, but I was impressed with what I found. I think of the system as taking all of those loose scrambled egg pieces and pressing them together into a neatly folded omelet.

Omelets are much easier to eat, because the messy parts are contained inside. SavingsAngel is like the egg that holds all the messy parts of couponing together.

You don't have to scramble around to find the best deals in your local area, because they do that for you. You don't have to find coupons to match up to those deals, because they tell you where the coupons are. All you have to do is fetch the coupons and organize them for your shopping trip. The scramble has been taken out of the equation.

I don't miss as many local deals or fall out of couponing nearly as often now, and that mainly has to do with my use of SavingsAngel. I prefer my coupon omelet to the old days of scrambled eggs!

#2: I have never seen a service as inclusive as SavingsAngel.

One of the things that impressed me right away was the number of stores covered by SavingsAngel. I was able to find all of my favorite stores in their system, except for one local store that is not nationwide. This means they can scout out the deals from all of my favorites, while I just keep track of that one store on my own. How convenient!

Whether you like to shop at little stores like Walgreens or big grocery chains like Kroger, you will probably find most of your favs in their system as well. I have scouted out many similar programs, and I can affirm that there are no other services with this selection of stores. If you know of one that has a better selection, let me know!

You may even find out about new coupon-friendly stores in your local area once you start looking through the directory offered at SavingsAngel. Rather than looking through all of those stores on your own each week, you let the Angel do it for you. How many hours could that spare you in a month? That is an interesting question to ponder.

#3: Lists are a girl's best friend.

Diamonds are great, but lists have officially become this girl's best friend. I have been in this amazing love affair with the printable listing feature included with SavingsAngel for quite some time now, and the passion isn't dying out!

I can quickly pour through all of the bargains they have found for me, click the box next to the ones that I want to take advantage of, and then allow the system to compile a convenient list that I can print out. This is a great organizational tool that saves me tons of time every week. This one feature has taken the hassle and scramble out of couponing for me.

The system generates a list that includes all of the following:

- Store Names
- Specific Deals
- Matching Coupons
- Expected Savings

Once I print my list, I know exactly what stores I want to hit, what I want to buy in each store, what coupons I need for each store, and how much I will save from each store. On those occasions that a store will actually pay me to take the products off their hands, my list will tell me how much I should make on that deal.

Forget about scrambling eggs, right? I don't have to scramble around to put all of this together myself, because SavingsAngel will do the scramble for me and present it in a convenient list that prints and slips into my pocketbook quickly. That's like the garnish sitting attractively on the plate next to my omelet!

#4: The insider secrets are on blast with Savings Angel.

It is expected that a system like SavingsAngel would offer instructional videos on how to use all elements of their service. Every coupon management system wants you to understand how to use the system. Otherwise, you won't remain a customer of the system for long.

What took me by surprise with this particular system is that they don't just offer instructions on how to get the most from their service. They also want to make sure their customers have confidence walking into their local stores to claim their bargains. In order to feel that confidence, you have to understand how couponing works.

SavingsAngel does a lot of the work for you, so they don't have to take that extra step to make sure you understand what they are doing. They could, like so many of their competitors, keep that a secret so you will not get the idea of doing it all for yourself and cutting them out of the deal. Yet, they don't do that. They offer complete training on how couponing works so you understand what you are doing when you walk into the store with that weekly printout and your coupons.

There is no such thing as insider secrets with Savings Angel! They put the secrets of saving with coupons on full blast, so all of their customers are in the loop. Their competitors might not like this, but I love it.

This is something I wish I had access to when I first started using coupons. I would not have made so many mistakes and lost out on so many great deals had I known what Savings Angel is teaching about the coupon industry.

For those just starting out with coupons, I think their coupon primer is enough reason on its own to sign up for SavingsAngel. You will waste weeks if not months of your time searching for this information online at various websites. Why do that when you can learn it all in one place and then allow the system to do the majority of the scrambling for you?

This system offers the best of both worlds. You understand how to get savings with coupons and could do it on your own if you had the time and desire. Yet, you get all of their help so you don't have to do it on your own.

#5: You are never on your own with SavingsAngel.

I have already admitted to having my doubts about this service when I first heard of it, but all of that doubt was wiped away the moment I learned of their Angel Mentor program. I signed up for the service and took a look around, and was impressed just on the merits of the listing system and the amount of training material they provide for those new to couponing. So, it was a complete surprise when a very friendly girl named Rae called me up a few days later.

Rae is my Angel Mentor. It was her job to welcome me to the neighborhood and make sure I knew my way around. Not only was she available to answer any of my questions about the service, but she was open to answering questions about couponing in general as well. I had never seen anything like this offered from competing services, and it came as a big surprise. I wasn't charged anything extra for this courtesy call, or for any of the other conversations I have since had with Rae.

Every new SavingsAngel member who requests it is matched to an Angel Mentor. For someone who has been using coupons for years and just wants the organizational and time saving benefits of using this type of service, the mentorship program may not seem like such a big deal. For someone who is just getting started and needs to learn more about the process of couponing, the mentorship program is a valuable gift.

It is inevitable that you will have questions after going through the training information provided through SavingsAngel. Rather than sending an email to a random person and waiting for a response (if you even get one), you can just ask those questions directly to your mentor. You get instant answers without searching anywhere else to fill in the blanks.

#6: Entrapment is not the name of the game.

Have you ever signed up for a service and later felt like you were entrapped? I know that I have in the past! They make it so difficult to cancel your membership that you almost want to just keep paying so you don't have to waste your time jumping through the hoops. This is always something I think about when I sign up for any new service, but it is not a problem with SavingsAngel.

Once you sign up for the service, you take the first 4 weeks to learn your way around the system and start putting it to use. You get to see how it all comes together and how much time it saves you. If you decide that it is a great service and you fall in love with the community as I did in my first 4 weeks, they give you the second 4 weeks of service FREE! You get to stick around and hang out with us in the forums, but you don't have to pay for it.

If you decide that you aren't saving enough time or money by using the system, then you are free to cancel and get a full refund on that first 4 weeks of membership. There are no questions asked and no hoops to jump through. It is very easy to cancel the membership, recoup the money, and go on your merry way.

This is something I really love about SavingsAngel. They are completely open and honest with their policies. They are not trying to rope in customers with deceptive techniques and they don't hold anyone hostage. If you decide you don't want to remain a member of the family, then the family releases you right away. You have the integrity to decide what is right for your money, and you can come or go whenever it suits you.

#7: There is a large, very active SavingsAngel community waiting with open arms.

This is something you wouldn't ordinarily find out about until you officially became a member, but I wanted to fill you in on it right now. There are many other people using SavingsAngel, and they have formed a lively community connecting daily through the Savings Angel forums. I felt welcomed right into the family when I first joined, and have gained tons of valuable information over the years of my membership.

I am still very active there, and I love answering questions and helping new members discover their passion for couponing. If you become a member, you may see me around...be sure to say hello! I would love to be among the first to welcome you into the Savings Angel community.

#8: The community goes viral.

The SavingsAngel Facebook page is just an extension of the family meetings that take place in the forums every single day. I love Facebook and am on there for personal and business reasons all the time. I especially love to network with SavingsAngel because they offer special promotions and contests that provide entertainment and occasionally a prize.

You don't have to be a paying member of the service to "like" their page and take part in many of their fun promotions. This is a great way to get familiar with some of the biggest names in the community and learn more about what the service could add to your bargain hunting adventures. If you are thinking about signing up even a little, start by hitting that like button and seeing what they have to offer on the networking front.

Once you become a paying member of the community, you can also use your Facebook, Twitter, Google+ and other social networking accounts to take advantage of the next insider tip to follow below.

#9: Refer your friends and save even more.

The referral program is something easy to overlook, but I suggest you work it just as you would work a stack of coupons. Turn the program into even more savings. You could end up with a free membership to SavingsAngel, imagine that!

When you print out that weekly list of savings for all of your favorite stores, there will be a section on the bottom with all of your membership details. You can tear that off and hand it someone else in the grocery store, and if they sign up it is payday for you! When you have helped only 4 people sign up, then you can have a completely free membership which saves you even more money.

You would be surprised how many people are ready to start saving more money, even if it means clipping coupons. If you are interested in a program like SavingsAngel, imagine how many other people out there would be interested in it as well.

You can also promote SavingsAngel through your social networking accounts, and you know how many of your friends and colleagues could use a time and money saving program like this. Brag about it a little and you may be shocked to see how many others jump on board with you.

#10: SavingsAngel is my motivator!

I saved this for last, because it might not resonate with everyone. If you ever just need a bit of motivation to get up and find those bargains, I believe SavingsAngel will give you that kick in the rear end when needed.

I know what it is like to feel overwhelmed with other things in life and push couponing off. When I get my weekly newsletter from SavingsAngel and see all of the amazing deals happening at stores around me, I am energized and ready to bargain shop. I am reminded that couponing is a great opportunity to provide for my family without stressing out the bank account.

Not only does SavingsAngel provide that motivating weekly newsletter detailing bargains I could be out taking advantage of, but they also give me sneak peeks at deals that may be coming up next week. I can always depend on this service to help me find deals that I am sure I would miss on my own.

Whew! I have officially told you everything that I know about using SavingsAngel to manage your couponing activity and make sure you never again miss a great deal. Take a deep breath. Get the kids happy with their toys or down for a nap. Pour something to drink and get comfy in your chair, the couch, or the front porch swing. Go back over my insider secrets if you feel the need, and then head on over to SavingsAngel to see what you think.

I do hope my insider information on this service will make it easier for you to decide whether it is right for you. Yet, I know that my opinion is only secondary to your own firsthand opinion. Give it a try for the first 4 weeks, and see what you think. If you decide it isn't right for you, remember entrapment is not the name of the game! You are free to jump out of the community and get your money back...or you are also free to stick around and take your second 4 weeks FREE!
